Lost at Pearl Harbor, Milton sailor coming home to rest

By TRENTON SCROGGINS

The body of Navy Fireman 3rd Class Willard I. Lawson, of Milton, Kentucky, who died Dec. 7, 1941 in the attack on the U.S. Naval base at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, will be laid in its final resting place in Madison on April 27.

After decades of work to identify the fallen U.S. personnel of the WWII Pacific Theater, Lawson was identified August 27, 2018.

According to a release by the Defense POW/MIA Accounting Agency, Lawson, then 25, was killed during WWII while assigned to the U.S.S. Oklahoma battleship. The ship, which was moored at Ford Island, Pearl Harbor, when Japanese aircraft attacked the naval base on Dec. 7, 1941, sustained significant damage after multiple torpedo strikes, causing the vessel to capsize quickly. The accounting agency said the attack resulted in 429 crewmen deaths, including Lawson.

Lawson's body was accounted for last year, 77 years after the attacks and the onslaught of U.S. involvement in the Second World War. During this time, according to the agency, after Lawson's body was recovered along with others from the crew, his body was interred in the Halawa and Nu'uanu Cemeteries, as well as within the National Memorial Cemetery of the Pacific, known as the Punchbowl, in Honolulu.

Attempts were made in September 1947 to recover and identify fallen U.S. personnel in the Pacific Theater by the American Graves Registration Service when the service disinterred the remains of U.S. casualties from the Halawa and Nu'uanu Cemeteries and transferred them to the Central Identification Laboratory at Schofield Barracks. The laboratory staff could only confirm the identity of 35 men from the U.S.S. Oklahoma at the time.

In October 1949, a military board classified the unidentifiable remains as non-recoverable, Lawson was among those remains.

It wasn't until April 2015 that a policy memorandum was issued, directing the disinternment of the U.S.S. Oklahoma unknowns, and, on June 2015, DPAA staff began exhuming the remains for analysis, the release said.

"To identify Lawson's remains, scientists from DPAA used dental and anthropological analysis, as well as circumstantial and material evidence," the release said. "Additionally, scientists from the Armed Forces Medical Examiner System used mitochondrial DNA analysis."

"Of the 16 million Americans who served in World War II, more than 400,000 died during the war. Currently there are 72,738 (approximately 26,000 are assessed as possibly-recoverable) still unaccounted for from World War II," the agency, said. "Lawson's name is recorded on the Walls of the Missing at the Punchbowl, along with the others who are missing from WWII. A rosette will be placed next to his name to indicate he has been accounted for."

An obituary on Page A5 of today's Madison Courier provides details of the life of Navy Fireman 3rd Class Willard I. Lawson, of Milton, Kentucky, and the local services planned for him.

Facts about the holiday

Why Easter is called Easter

The symbols and customs of Easter have evolved through the centuries. The Stations of the Cross, a theatrical reading of Jesus' crucifixion by members of the Hispanic community of Prince of Peace Catholic Church, is an annual event in Madison. These photos by Elisabeth Moore are from the 2018 presentation when the event began at Pope John Elementary School and ended at the Prince of Peace Catholic Church. Fourteen stations were set up to tell the story of Jesus' crucifixion.

By BRENT LANDAU

Tomorrow, April 21, Christians will be celebrating Easter, the day on which the resurrection of Jesus is said to have taken place. The date of celebration changes from year to year.

The reason for this variation is that Easter always falls on the first Sunday after the first full moon following the spring equinox. So, in 2020, Easter will be celebrated on April 12, and on April 4 in 2021.

This dating of Easter goes back to the complicated origins of this holiday and how it has evolved over the centuries.

Easter is quite similar to other major holidays like Christmas and Halloween, which have evolved over the last 200 years or so. In all of these holidays, Christian and non-Christian (pagan) elements have continued to blend together.

Most major holidays have some connection to the changing of seasons. This is especially obvious in the case of Christmas. The New Testament gives no information about what time of year Jesus was born. Many scholars believe, however, that the main reason Jesus' birth came to be celebrated on December 25 is because that was the date of the winter solstice according to the Roman calendar.

Since the days after the winter solstice gradually become longer and less dark, it was ideal symbolism for

Campaign signs prompt a new county ordinance

By TALI HUNT

The Jefferson County Commissioners approved a new ordinance Thursday evening after reporting that they had received several complaints regarding the campaign signs on the courthouse property.

Commissioner Robert Little explained that the commissioners and their secretary had heard complaints and that they couldn't recall a time where there had been signs placed on the edge of the courthouse lawn. They contacted to the Indiana Secretary of State's office to check the rules on the signage placement, he said, and were told that campaign signs could be placed on courthouse property unless there was a county ordinance in place forbidding the practice.

The commissioners unanimously approved an ordinance that puts the Jefferson County Courthouse under the same rules as polling locations with respect to campaigning and electioneering. That ordinance will be effective June 1, 2019.

This means that as of June, no campaign signage or electioneering may take place within 50 feet of the courthouse.

Man gets 65 years for random killing of 82-year-old

Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS — A judge has sentenced a man to 65 years in prison for fatally shooting an 82-year-old suburban Indianapolis man in what investigators said was a random act of violence. Damoine Wilcoxson, 23, of Indianapolis was sentenced Thursday after being found guilty of murder in a bench trial of killing 82-year-old John Clements of Zionsville as the man walked to his mailbox in the middle of the day on Sept. 28, 2016. It was the town's first murder in 20 years. Wilcoxson already is serving a 37-year sentence for three shootings in Indianapolis after the Clements slaying. He fired shots at two city police stations and was arrested after a standoff during which he shot at police. Shell casings from those shootings linked Wilcoxson to Clements' death.

4 regions chosen as Stellar finalists

INDIANAPOLIS — Four regions have been chosen as finalists for state funding aimed at boosting community ties and economic development. Lt. Gov. Suzanne Crouch announced the finalists for the 2019 Stellar Communities Designation Program on Thursday. They include "Constellation of Starke," which consists of the communities of Hamlet, Knox, North Judson and Starke County, and "Jay! Region," which encompasses Dunkirk, Portland, Pennville, Redkey and Jay County. The two other regional finalists are "Marshall County Crossroads," which comprises Argos, Bourbon, Bremen, Culver, Plymouth and Marshall County, and "Safe and Welcome," which encompasses Knightstown, New Castle and Henry County. This year's 2019 Stellar Communities Program designations will be announced Dec. 5. The multi-million dollar investment initiative is led by the Office of Community and Rural Affairs, which Crouch oversees.

No foul play in death of body found in Ohio River

NEW ALBANY— The Indiana Department of Natural Resources says no foul play is suspected in the death of a 17-year-old male whose body was recovered from the Ohio River. The body was found Friday evening near where Silver Creek empties into the river at New Albany. The News and Tribune reports an autopsy was performed Monday in Floyd County. Conservation officer Jim Shreck says a cause of death hasn't been determined, but the body is that of a youth missing from nearby Louisville, Kentucky. He was unable to release the youth's name.

Trial set for woman charged in bus deaths

ROCHESTER — A judge has set a trial date for a woman accused of striking and killing three children with a pickup truck as they crossed a highway to board a school bus. Fulton County Prosecutor Michael Marrs tells WSBT-TV the Oct. 5 trial date for Alyssa Shepherd of Rochester was set during a closed pretrial hearing. Shepherd has pleaded not guilty to three counts of reckless homicide, criminal recklessness and a misdemeanor count of passing a school bus when an arm signal device is extended. The October 2018 collision killed twin brothers, Xzavier and Mason Ingle, 6, and their sister, Alivia Stahl, 9. Shepherd has told authorities she didn't realize she was approaching a stopped school bus, despite the activated stop arm and flashing lights.

Man pleads guilty to trying to kill officers

GARRETT — A man has pleaded guilty to two counts of attempted murder stemming from an exchange of gunfire with two officers. Joshua D. Mumma, 42, of Garrett ,also pleaded guilty to being a habitual offender under a plea agreement Wednesday in which prosecutors will dismiss an enhancement for use of a firearm against a police officer and charges of dealing in methamphetamine and disarming a law enforcement officer. The (Auburn) Star reports DeKalb Superior Court Judge Kevin Wallace advised Mumma he could face a sentencing range of 46-100 years. Prosecutors have said DeKalb sheriff's Deputy Todd McCormick was shot in his hands during the April 10, 2018, shooting following a traffic stop. Garrett Officer Alicia Castro also participated in the stop. Mumma was shot and hospitalized for several weeks.

Man acquitted in 2018 stabbing death

ROCKVILLE — A man has been acquitted in the 2018 stabbing death of another man during a fight. The Tribune-Star reports a jury on Thursday found Dana M. Harris, 40, of Rockville not guilty on charges of aggravated battery, reckless homicide and criminal recklessness with a deadly weapon. Sheriff Justin Cole says Harris has been released from the Parke County Jail. Harris was arrested in June 2018 after police responded to a house in Rockville and found Shane Skelton, 42, lying on the ground with a stab wound. He died at a hospital. The man's estranged wife told authorities that Skelton had been in a fight with Harris inside the house. Harris told police he had used a knife to defend himself against Skelton.

Bridge closure worries businesses in city

PERU — Some business owners in a northern Indiana city are worried that a months-long bridge closure could hurt their bottom lines. The Kelly Avenue Bridge crosses the Wabash River on Peru's west side and provides the city's main access point from U.S. 31. The span closed to traffic Tuesday for a nearly $2 million rehabilitation and will remain shuttered until November, restricting access to an area with several restaurants, banks and retail stores. Some nearby business owners fear the closure could hurt their sales. Kevin Dunn is general manager of Wings Etc. He tells the Kokomo Tribune that the eatery "can survive in the short term" but maybe not if the bridge closure permanently changes residents' traffic patterns. The 1930s bridge is one of Indiana's last truss bridges of its kind.

New testing finds higher lead levels in 7 schools

HAMMOND — A new round of testing has found lead levels in the drinking water at seven northwestern Indiana schools that exceed the federal action level for the toxic metal. The School City of Hammond's board heard from a consulting firm Tuesday that drinking water in seven Hammond schools and two other district buildings tested above the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's lead action level of 15 parts per billion. The new testing follows tests conducted last summer that led the district to remove 52 drinking fountains from service in nine schools. The (Northwest Indiana) Times reports the district is preparing a report on its response to the test results. Exposure to even low levels of lead can damage a child's developing brain, affecting their IQ, ability to pay attention and academic achievement.

Gov. Matt Bevin's office announced the notification from President Donald Trump. The declaration grants public assistance to repair roads, bridges and infrastructure. It will also give the state mitigation funding.

State officials warn not to feed bears

FRANKFORT — State wildlife officials are issuing guidelines and warnings about feeding bears as the animals become more active in some parts of the state. Officials say an increase in activity can lead to an increase in bear complaints for those living in areas with established populations. In a release the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources is urging residents to change bad habits, like leaving food in garbage cans that can be toppled by bears. John Hast, a bear program coordinator for the agency, says most bear problems revolve around food. So when a bear gets used to human food, even from the garbage, it begins to lose its fear of people. Officials are forced to euthanize a few bears each year because they presented a potential danger to the public after being fed by humans.

School districts gain funds to replace buses

FRANKFORT — Officials say five school districts will receive $231,237 to reduce diesel emissions from their school bus fleets. Officials say the funds were made available through the Kentucky Division for Air Quality's Clean Diesel

Mastodon remains found during city project near Seymour

By JORDAN RICHART
(Seymour) Tribune

Sometimes, you find something you're not even looking for.

That was the case for workers with Atlas Excavating, who recently discovered the remains of a mastodon at a farm in Seymour.

The workers were digging on property owned by Joe Schepman and his family on the city's east side, installing sewer lines as part of a $15.5 million project when the discovery was made last week.

Schepman owns the property with his sister, Sue Nehrt and her husband Tony, and their aunt and uncle. They were unearthed on an easement for the sewer. The remains include the majority of a tusk, part of a jawbone with teeth, two upper leg bones, a vertebrae, a joint and part of the skull. The tusk was split into two pieces and together made up about a third of the tusk.

The mastodon remains belonged to a male estimated between 40 and 50 years old when it died, Schepman was told. The animal died between 10,000 and 13,000 years ago and weighed about 12,000 pounds, he said.

Schepman was paid a visit from Ron Richards with the Indiana State Museum, who was able to tell its age by the teeth. He said Richards determined the sex by the size of the tusks.

Richards said the animal would have stood between 9 and 9½ feet tall. He said most of the discoveries are made during construction projects.

The part of the skull found looks similar to a honeycomb, and Schepman's son, Brad, said he was interested in why it looked the way it does. He was told it was so the animal could raise its head with the weight of the tusks.

Richards took the vertebrae, which they believe was broken when it was unearthed, to determine its exact age. Richards will send it to a facility, which will use radiocarbon dating to see how old it was when it died.

Mastodons were prehistoric animals often compared to the look of a woolly mammoth but were smaller. They're distantly related to elephants.

The animals were similar to an elephant and had a trunk, two curved tusks and brown hair. The animals grazed and thundered through the area but disappeared about 10,500 years ago, scientists estimate.

It's pretty common to find the remains in Indiana, as nearly all counties throughout the state have had discoveries, according to the Indiana State Museum and Historic Sites. In nearly 38 years at the state museum, Richards said he has not been to Jackson County for a mastodon before. He has investigated reports of elk antlers.

Program and the federal Diesel Emissions Reduction Act. The state Energy and Environment Cabinet says the funds will go to school districts in Bullitt, Jefferson, Franklin, Letcher and Green counties. State officials say the districts will use the funds to replace older-model, diesel school buses with new diesel buses. They say the new buses will emit 98 percent less particulate matter and 90 percent less nitrogen oxide than the older buses being replaced. The state says the five districts will replace a total of 10 diesel school buses.

Judge rules state must disclose records

FRANKFORT — A judge has overruled a decision by the state to release only documents with blacked-out details of allegations of sexual harassment and discrimination made by a former top social services official. The Courier Journal reports that Franklin County Circuit Judge Phillip Shepherd ruled Wednesday that the state must disclose the records and pay the newspaper's legal costs. The newspaper sought the records after Adria Johnson resigned last year as commissioner of the Department for Community Based Services. Shepherd rejected the state's argument that it could withhold the information because the state's internal investigation hadn't substantiated Johnson's allegations. A statement from the Cabinet for Health and Family Services, where Johnson worked, said it would appeal the ruling in order to be able to continue to protect the privacy of public servants when allegations can't be substantiated.

Man pleads guilty in boy's 2014 death

LOUISVILLE — A man has pleaded guilty in the death of a boy in a park more than four years ago. News outlets report Joseph Cambron's, 26, trial was set for later this month. Cambron was originally charged with murder in the death of Ray Etheridge, 12, in Louisville's Cherokee Park on Sept. 30, 2014. He told police he stabbed Etheridge after the boy punched him and took his wallet. Cambron pleaded guilty last week to a lesser charge of first-degree manslaughter for 13 years in prison. Jefferson County Circuit Judge Charles Cunningham will sentence Cambron on June 21. He also pleaded guilty to tampering with evidence for disposing of the knife. Attorneys said the plea deal was reached after the judge suppressed Cambron's statement to police.

Homeless ask city for 3-week clearing notice

LEXINGTON — Some Kentuckians struggling with homelessness are asking for an ordinance that requires homeless camps be given notice of camp clearings at least 21 days in advance. News outlets report the ordinance was proposed to a Lexington-Fayette Urban County Council committee on Tuesday. The General Government and Social Services Committee said it will revisit the issue at its May 14 meeting. The city has removed 14 homeless camps since July, with several being taken down during winter. The director of Lexington's Homeless Prevention and Intervention Office, Polly Ruddick, says the city gives residents time to collect belongings before camp removals, but there's no standard amount of time. Ginny Ramsey is the co-founder of one of Lexington's homeless shelters.

Jim Beam donation to create spirits institute

LEXINGTON — Jim Beam bourbon says it will donate $5 million to the University of Kentucky to establish the James B. Beam Institute for Kentucky Spirits to teach the next generation of master distillers. Beam Suntory top executive Albert Baladi says the donation is an investment in bourbon's future. Beam Suntory owns the Jim Beam brand. The University of Louisville said its board Thursday approved a nine-credit-hour online distilled spirits business certificate for graduate students starting this fall. The credits will count toward completion of an MBA. UK said Wednesday the institute will offer courses across engineering, chemistry, business, law, horticulture, forestry, food science and entomology. The university will continue its certificate program, which will also be offered online starting this fall. Jim Beam master distiller Fred Noe says new distillers, scientists and engineers are needed to continue bourbon's global growth.

DeVos brings more money after shooting

BENTON — A school district where two students were fatally shot last year has been awarded a second federal grant to help recover from the tragedy. U.S. Education Secretary Betsy DeVos traveled to Marshall County with Kentucky Gov. Matt Bevin on Wednesday to announce the Project School Emergency Response to Violence grant. The award is for more than $460,000. A previous grant was for $138,000. The money will fund more school resource officers and hall monitors, and a school nurse will be hired. More than a dozen students were injured in the Jan. 23, 2018, shooting at Marshall County High School in western Kentucky. A teenage classmate is charged with murder and assault. Kentucky education officials said students who aren't ready to return to school can continue studying online at home.

No charges against Trump, but much troubling behavior

By BRIAN A. HOWEY

INDIANAPOLIS – The American people now have access to most of the Russia collusion investigation of Special Counsel Robert Mueller. As I write this, I wade through 440 "lightly redacted pages."

The good news for all Americans is that the actions of President Trump and his 2016 presidential campaign did not rise, in the eyes of the special counsel, to the proverbial "high crimes and misdemeanors." But the reasoning there is a Department of Justice ruling that a sitting president cannot be indicted.

President Trump was quick to declare a victory — and this would be strictly in a legal sense — following Attorney General William Barr's memo last March. On Thursday, Trump said, "I'm having a good day, too. It was called no collusion. No obstruction. This hoax, it should never happen again."

But this report is troubling in many ways for the conduct of Trump and his campaign.

Why?

In the executive summary, Mueller writes, "First, the Office determined that Russia's two principle interference operations in the 2016 presidential election — the social media campaign and the hacking-and-dumping operations — violated U.S. criminal law."

The problem here is that the Trump administration has not taken steps to prevent similar assaults from occurring again. Its thrust has simply been to tamp down the collusion allegations.

"Second," Mueller continued, "while the investigation identified numerous links between individuals with ties to the Russian government and individuals associated with the Trump campaign, the evidence was not sufficient to support criminal charges. Among other things, the evidence was not sufficient to charge any campaign officials as an unregistered agent of the Russian government or other Russian principal."

"Although the investigation established that the Russian government perceived it would benefit from a Trump presidency and worked to secure that outcome, and that the Campaign expected it would benefit electorally from information stolen and released through Russian efforts, the investigation did not establish that members of the Trump Campaign conspired or coordinated with the Russian government in its election interference activities," the report said.

Report On The Investigation Into Russian Interference In The 2016 Presidential Election

Volume I of II

Special Counsel Robert S. Mueller, III

Submitted Pursuant to 28 C.F.R. § 600.8(c)

Washington, D.C.

March 2019

Read and search the redacted Mueller report
https://interactives.ap.org/the-mueller-report-document/?apnews=true

In the history of American presidential politics, I cannot remember any campaign, by a Republican or Democrat, which left itself open to assistance from a foreign power, let alone one that has been as antagonistic as Vladimir Putin's Russia. Since taking office, Trump has met alone with Putin at least five times, there are no readouts available to U.S. officials including National Intelligence Director Dan Coats, and Trump's troubling actions toward NATO and our European Union allies align with Putin's goals to destabilize the western alliance.

The third point: "The investigation established that several individuals affiliated with the Trump campaign lied to the Office, and to Congress, about the Russian-affiliated election interference." These would include former national security adviser Michael Flynn, foreign policy adviser George Papadopoulos and Manafort, who has been convicted on an array of federal crimes.

Lying has become an operating credo of Trump World. So while the conduct did not rise to criminal behavior, this is hardly the kind of behavior Americans should expect or accept of people seeking the highest office in the land.

Further, Mueller explains that Donald Trump's actions and intent "presents difficult issues that prevent us from conclusively determining that no criminal conduct occurred."

On questions of whether President Trump attempted to obstruct justice with his firing of FBI director James Comey and tweets aimed at witnesses, Mueller explained, "With respect to whether the President can be found to have obstructed justice by exercising his powers under Article II of the Constitution, we concluded that Congress has the authority to prohibit a President's corrupt use of his authority in order to protect the integrity of the administration of justice."

"Fairness concerns counseled against potentially reaching" a judgment that President Trump committed crimes "when no charges can be brought. We recognized that a federal criminal accusation against a sitting President would place burdens on the President's capacity to govern and potentially preempt constitutional processes for addressing presidential misconduct,"

"The evidence we obtained about the President's actions and intent presents difficult issues that would need to be resolved if we were making a traditional prosecutorial judgment," the report stated. "At the same time, if we had confidence after a thorough investigation of the facts that the President clearly did not commit obstruction of justice, we would so state. Based on the facts and the applicable legal standards, we are unable to reach that judgment."

Whew.

The report is not a clarion refutation of the conduct of Trump and his campaign. What we know now is that their actions didn't rise to criminal conduct, in Trump's case because a president can't be indicted. But these activities are still deeply, deeply troubling.

When the entire report reaches Congress, there will be renewed talk of impeachment. It's something I have rejected in the past. Without the high crimes and misdemeanor threshold, it is dangerous for the republic to reach for impeachment. We've been close or at that point three times in American history, in 1868 with President Andrew Johnson, again in 1974 before President Nixon resigned, and in 1999 with President Clinton. If we end up in a pattern of impeaching a president every decade or so, the American experience will crumble.

These troubling scenarios Mueller has outlined and documented need to be addressed at the ballot box in 2020.

Mueller report: Trump largely failed to derail Russia probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Donald Trump sought the removal of special counsel Robert Mueller, discouraged witnesses from cooperating with prosecutors and prodded aides to mislead the public on his behalf, according to a hugely anticipated report from Mueller that details multiple efforts the president made to curtail a Russia probe he feared would cripple his administration.

Trump's attempts to seize control of the investigation, and directions to others on how to influence it, "were mostly unsuccessful, but that is largely because the persons who surrounded the President declined to carry out orders or accede to his requests," Mueller wrote in a two-volume, 448-page redacted report that made for riveting reading.

In one particularly dramatic moment, Mueller reported that Trump was so agitated at the special counsel's appointment on May 17, 2017, that he slumped back in his chair and declared: "Oh my God. This is terrible. This is the end of my presidency. I'm f---ed."

With that, Trump set out to save himself.

In June of that year, Mueller wrote, Trump directed White House Counsel Don McGahn to call Deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein, who oversaw the probe, and say that Mueller must be ousted because he had conflicts of interest. McGahn refused — deciding he would sooner resign than trigger a potential crisis akin to the Saturday Night Massacre of firings during the Watergate era.

Two days later, the president made another attempt to alter the course of the investigation, meeting with former campaign manager Corey Lewandowski and dictating a message for him to relay to then-Attorney General Jeff Sessions. The message: Sessions would publicly call the investigation "very unfair" to the president, declare Trump did nothing wrong and say Mueller should limit his probe to "investigating election meddling for future elections." The message was never delivered.

The report's bottom line largely tracked the findings revealed in Attorney General William Barr's four-page memo released a month ago — no collusion with Russia but no clear verdict on obstruction — but it added new layers of detail about Trump's efforts to thwart the investigation. Looking ahead, both sides were already using the findings to amplify well-rehearsed arguments about Trump's conduct, Republicans casting him as a victim of harassment and Democrats depicting the president as stepping far over the line to derail the investigation.

The Justice Department released its redacted version of the report about 90 minutes after Barr offered his own final assessment of the findings at a testy news conference. The nation, Congress and Trump's White House consumed it voraciously online, via compact disc delivered to legislators and in loose-leaf binders distributed to reporters.

The release represented a moment of closure nearly two years in the making but also the starting bell for a new round of partisan warfare.

A defiant Trump pronounced it "a good day" and tweeted "Game Over" in a typeface mimicking the "Game of Thrones" logo. By late afternoon, he was airborne for his Mar-a-Lago private club in Florida with wife Melania for the holiday weekend.

Top Republicans in Congress saw vindication, too.

House Minority Leader Kevin McCarthy said it was time to move on from Democrats' effort to "vilify a political opponent." The California lawmaker said the report failed to deliver the "imaginary evidence" incriminating Trump that Democrats had sought.

Trump campaign manager Brad Parscale said Republicans should turn the tables and "investigate the liars who instigated this sham investigation."

But Democrats cried foul over Barr's preemptive press conference and said the report revealed troubling details about Trump's conduct in the White House.

In a joint statement, House Speaker Nancy Pelosi and Senate Democratic leader Chuck Schumer wrote that "one thing is clear: Attorney General Barr presented a conclusion that the president did not obstruct justice while Mueller's report appears to undercut that finding."

House Judiciary Chairman Jerrold Nadler added that the report "outlines disturbing evidence that President Trump engaged in obstruction of justice and other misconduct." He sent a letter to the Justice Department requesting that Mueller himself testify before his panel "no later than May 23 and said he'd be issuing a subpoena for the full special counsel report and the underlying materials.

Signaling battles ahead, Nadler earlier called the investigation "incredibly thorough" work that would preserve evidence for future probes.

Barr said he wouldn't object to Mueller testifying.

Trump himself was never questioned in person, but the report's appendix includes 12 pages of his written responses to queries from Mueller's team.

Mueller deemed Trump's written answers — rife with iterations of "I don't recall" — to be "inadequate." He considered issuing a subpoena to force the president to appear in person but decided against it after weighing the likelihood of a long legal battle.

In his written answers, Trump said his comment during a 2016 political rally asking Russian hackers to help find emails scrubbed from Hillary Clinton's private server was made "in jest and sarcastically" and said he did not recall being told during the campaign of any Russian effort to infiltrate or hack computer systems.

But Mueller said that within five hours of Trump's comment, Russian military intelligence officers were targeting email accounts connected to Clinton's office.

Mueller evaluated nearly a dozen episodes for possible obstruction of justice, and said he could not conclusively determine that Trump had committed criminal obstruction. The episodes included Trump's firing of FBI Director James Comey, the president's directive to subordinates to have Mueller fired and efforts to encourage witnesses not to cooperate.

Sessions was so affected by Trump's frequent criticism of him for recusing himself from the investigation that he kept a resignation letter "with him in his pocket every time he went to the White House," Mueller said.

The president's lawyers have said Trump's conduct fell within his constitutional powers, but Mueller's team deemed the episodes deserving of scrutiny for potential criminal acts.

As for the question of whether the Trump campaign had colluded with Russia during the 2016 presidential campaign, Mueller wrote that the campaign "expected it would benefit electorally from information stolen and released through Russian efforts."

But Mueller said investigators concluded, "While the investigation identified numerous links between individuals with ties to the Russian government and individuals associated with the Trump Campaign, the evidence was not sufficient to support criminal charges."

Workers at a Russian troll farm contacted Trump's campaign, claiming to be political activists for conservative grassroots organizations, and asked for signs and other campaign materials to use at rallies. While volunteers provided some of those materials — and set aside a number of signs — investigators don't believe any Trump campaign officials knew the requests were coming from foreign nationals, Mueller wrote.

Mueller wrote that investigators "did not establish that members of the Trump campaign conspired or coordinated with the Russian government in its election interference activities."

Josh Blackman, a professor at the South Texas College of Law Houston, stressed that Mueller didn't think the president's obligations to run the executive branch entitled him to absolute immunity from prosecution. But to find that the president obstructed justice, he said, Mueller would have needed much clearer evidence that the president acted solely with "corrupt intent."

"The evidence was sort of muddled," Blackman said, adding that the president's actions had multiple motivations.

The report laid out some of Mueller's reasoning for drawing no conclusion on the question of obstruction.

Mueller wrote that he would have exonerated Trump if he could, but he wasn't able to do that given the evidence he uncovered.

And he said the Justice Department's standing opinion that a sitting president couldn't be indicted meant he also couldn't recommend Trump be criminally charged, even in secret.

Trump's written responses addressed no questions about obstruction of justice, as was part of an agreement with Trump's legal team.

He told Mueller he had "no recollection" of learning in advance about the much-scrutinized Trump Tower meeting between campaign officials and a Russian lawyer. He also said he had no recollection of knowledge about emails setting up the meeting that promised dirt on Clinton's Democratic campaign.

He broadly denied knowing of any foreign government trying to help his campaign, including the Russian government. He said he was aware of some reports that Russian President Vladimir Putin had made "complimentary statements" about him.

It wasn't just Trump under the microscope. But Mueller wrote that he believed prosecutors would be unlikely to meet the burden of proof to show that Donald Trump Jr. and other participants in the Trump Tower meeting "had general knowledge that their conduct was unlawful." Nor did Mueller's probe develop evidence that they knew that foreign contributions to campaigns were illegal or other particulars of federal law.

Barr's contention that the report contained only "limited redactions" applied more to the obstruction of justice section than its look at Russian election meddling.

Overall, about 40 percent of the pages contained at least something that was blocked out, mostly to protect ongoing investigations. Barr had said that he would redact grand jury information and material related to investigations, privacy and intelligence.

Dispatcher charged with sex crimes as volunteer coach

By MIKE GRANT
Washington Times Herald

An Indiana State Police investigation has resulted in the arrest a local man who worked for the Daviess County Sheriff's as a dispatcher and as reserve officer for the Washington Police Department.

The Daviess County Sheriff's Department reported Terry R. Hill Jr., 23, Washington, surrendered at the Daviess County Security Center Monday evening.

He was formally charged with one count of rape, three counts of sexual misconduct with a minor and one count each of child solicitation and sexual battery.

Hill spent Monday night in jail before posting $500,000 bail around midday Tuesday.

Details on the charges were sealed by the Daviess Circuit Court at the request of Daviess County Prosecutor Dan Murrie.

A clerk at the court office said that it would be unlikely that the probable cause affidavit would be unsealed this week. Murrie was out of the office Tuesday afternoon.

The Washington Times Herald has learned that the charges stem from alleged events that happened while Hill was working as a volunteer girls soccer coach at Washington Catholic.

"I cannot comment because the case is still under investigation," said Washington Catholic Middle and High School Principal Karie Craney, who referred inquiries to the Evansville Diocese.

A Diocese spokesman also declined any comment.

"The case is open," said Evansville Diocese Director of Communication Tim Lilly. "We won't comment on any pending cases. Neither the Diocese or school will have anything to say on a case that is pending."

Hill had spent the last two years working as a dispatcher for the Daviess County Sheriff's Department but had been suspended for the last several weeks.

"As soon as I received word that he was under investigation I put him on unpaid suspension," said Daviess

County Sheriff Gary Allison. "Once the formal charges were filed he was dismissed."

Hill is also no longer a reserve officer for the city police department.

"It's a sad situation," said Washington Police Chief Todd Church. "When we first heard the allegations we were in disbelief, but when we were told about them on March 6 he was immediately removed from the list of reserve officers."

Church says his department has no details on the case.

"Our officers were not involved in the investigation," he said. "He had been working as an unpaid volunteer but he had also applied for a full-time position."

Ex-officer pleads guilty to stealing f om football league

By APRILE RICKERT
(Jeffersonville & New Albany) News and Tribune

JEFFERSONVILLE — A Clarksville police officer charged in 2017 with stealing more than $5,000 in funds from a youth football league has entered a plea agreement and resigned from the department.

Joseph V. Hoskins, 38, pleaded guilty April 10 to one class A misdemeanor in the case; he was sentenced the same day to one year of unsupervised probation. Part of the plea stipulated he enter his resignation immediately from the department, which he has.

Hoskins was initially charged in September 2017 with three level 6 felonies and five class A misdemeanors for alleged theft of $5,840 from the Little Generals Youth Football League, between June 2016 and February 2017. He had been the league treasurer then, and court records show transactions from the league funds to his personal account in multiple amounts ranging from $140 to $1,800.

His attorney, Larry Wilder, previously told the News and Tribune the transactions had been accidental, as both accounts were tied to Hoskins' Social Security number. He reportedly paid back the funds soon after they were discovered missing by another board member, when the account was too depleted to buy the cheerleaders' uniforms at the start of the 2017 season.

Wilder was not available for comment for this story.

Once the allegations surfaced, Clarksville Police requested an investigation by the Clark County Sheriff's Office into the case. Hoskins, who had been with the department four years at that point, was placed on unpaid leave as soon as the investigation began. Clarksville Police Chief Mark Palmer said when an officer commits a crime such as this, it affects all officers. "Once an officer's credibility is tarnished, you cannot use him in any court cases, you cannot use him with the prosecutors, you cannot use him in any type of statement," Palmer said. "Once your credibility with this community has been tarnished, you're no linger usable as a police officer.

"When something like this happens, it gives all the officers a black eye and we have to step up a little bit higher because we're being scrutinized more."

And with a department of Clarksville's size, it can affect at a personal level. Palmer said he knows all of his crew by first name and their families. He's attended the graduation of every officer he's hired.

"So it's more than losing an officer," Palmer said. "We're a pretty tight-knit family so it's almost a betrayal, felt by everybody here."

Although the criminal case is complete, the Clarksville Police Commission has yet to make a determination on whether or not to continue with an internal investigation into the matter.

The commission had attempted the investigation before now, but when the formal charges were filed in September, Hoskins' attorney notified the court he would not participate in the department case until the criminal case was resolved. Despite protest by the department and town officials, the judge upheld that request in early 2018.

Palmer said having Hoskins' employment status in limbo during the case has meant one less officer on the department; his resignation last week frees up the position, and they'll be hiring a new officer in early May.

"I'm glad the matter has been decided and we can move forward," Palmer said, adding that "hopefully, by showing that we were addressing these problems within our own department shows that we will be as transparent as possible."

Sheriff doesn't think bills will lessen inmate population

By BEN MIDDLEKAMP
(Greenfield) Daily Reporte

GREENFIELD — The legislature's attempt to lessen the strain of low-level felons on county jails would barely make a dent at Hancock County's overcrowded jail, the county sheriff says.

Three bills moving through this year's Indiana General Assembly session — Senate Bill 319, House Bill 1078 and House Bill 1065 — were written with the state's overcrowded county jails in mind. The Indiana Sheriffs' Association has previously estimated that 96 percent of jail cells statewide are full. Forty to 45 counties are looking at building new jails or renovating existing facilities, the association has said.

Inmates sentenced with Level 6 felonies — low-level charges such as theft, drug possession and neglect of a dependent — serve that time at county jails rather than going to Indiana Department of Correction facilities. The state legislature voted in 2015 to make the change, saying at the time it would reduce recidivism.

Hancock County's inmate population has risen significantly since, reaching a record 259 last December.

H.B. 1078, which has already passed the House and Senate, says county judges can send convicted Level 6 felons to state prisons if the person is a violent offender or has two prior unrelated felony convictions. Similarly, S.B. 319 allows judges to send inmates to the DOC if the person's probation is revoked due to a new charge. The bill, which passed the Senate, hasn't yet been heard in committee in the House.

H.B. 1065 would allow sheriffs to transfer offenders to a regional holding center operated by the DOC if the county's jail is overcrowded. It also tasks the Indiana Criminal Justice Institute to identify federal, state or local grants that can be spent on funding and operating future regional facilities.

Hancock County Sheriff Brad Burkhart said although he doesn't know how many local offenders the bills would impact, it could reduce the number of sentenced Level 6 inmates the county outsources to two other Indiana counties — currently 57 men and women — by about quarter or by half.

"I don't think it's a significant (number), but it definitely will help us," he said.

On Tuesday, the 157-bed Hancock County Jail housed 248 inmates, including at least 71 charged with Level 6 felonies. Burkhart said an additional 65 offenders are housed in other Indiana counties.

The bills still won't alleviate the county's issue with inmate overcrowding or stop the county's plan to build a new jail, Burkhart said. The current jail should house 125 inmates to run at the recommended capacity, he said. A proposed new 440-bed county jail could cost up to $43 million and open as early as late 2020 or early 2021, according to county documents with RQAW, the consultant designing the jail.

"If you do not have a place to hold people incarcerated when they commit crimes, your quality of life is going to go down," Burkhart said. "You've got to have a place to keep people. So it just depends how you want to live here in Hancock County."

Burkhart said the bills are "Band-Aid" fixes to the state's overcrowding problem and not the "cure-all"

"You're not planning for the future," Burkhart said. "We're already behind, being overcrowded, and so you're able to get a few out of here, but you're still not planning for 10 to 20 to 30 years if you're basing it off a bill that's enacted today."

Current state law already allows judges to sentence a Level 6 felon to the DOC, said Keith Oliver, jail commander. The offender needs to have two or more felony convictions. Hancock County judges tried to sentence two people to the DOC, Oliver said, but the state didn't want to house them and sent the Level 6 felons back to the county.

State Sen. Mike Crider, R-Greenfield, said he expects the bills about jail overcrowding to be combined into one piece of legislation at the end of the session later this month. The bills won't solve the state's criminal justice issues, Crider said, but it will give counties options on how to handle Level 6 inmates.

"It's a challenging discussion, and it's a lot about money," Crider said. "The sheriffs are getting stuck with these folks and having to feed them and house them."

Burkhart said he and Hancock County's judges, the prosecutor's office and community corrections officials recently met to discuss the county's high incarceration rates. According to the DOC, Hancock County ranked No. 3 in the state for Level 6 felons, behind only Marion and Vanderburgh counties. On April 1, 134 inmates were either serving time with Level 6 felonies or awaiting trial in Hancock County.

Some of those offenders have violated probation three or four times, which causes judges to send them back to jail, Burkhart said. Other common Level 6 offenses include failure to return to lawful detention — people who don't return to community corrections — as well as drug possession, battery and possession of a syringe.

Burkhart expects the jail's population to keep increasing as the summer approaches.

• Why Easter

the birth of "the light of the world" as stated in the New Testament's Gospel of John.

Similar was the case with Easter, which falls in close proximity to another key point in the solar year: the vernal equinox — around March 20 — when there are equal periods of light and darkness. For those in northern latitudes, the coming of spring is often met with excitement, as it means an end to the cold days of winter.

Spring also means the coming back to life of plants and trees that have been dormant for winter, as well as the birth of new life in the animal world. Given the symbolism of new life and rebirth, it was only natural to celebrate the resurrection of Jesus at this time of the year.

The naming of the celebration as "Easter" seems to go back to the name of a pre-Christian goddess in England, Eostre, who was celebrated at beginning of spring. The only reference to this goddess comes from the writings of the Venerable Bede, a British monk who lived in the late seventh and early eighth century. As religious studies scholar Bruce Forbes summarizes:

"Bede wrote that the month in which English Christians were celebrating the resurrection of Jesus had been called Eosturmonath in Old English, referring to a goddess named Eostre. And even though Christians had begun affirming the Christian meaning of the celebration, they continued to use the name of the goddess to designate the season."

Bede was so influential for later Christians that the name stuck, and hence Easter remains the name by which the English, Germans and Americans refer to the festival of Jesus' resurrection.

It is important to point out that while the name "Easter" is used in the English-speaking world, many more cultures refer to it by terms best translated as "Passover" (for instance, "Pascha" in Greek) – a reference, indeed, to the Jewish festival of Passover.

In the Hebrew Bible, Passover is a festival that commemorates the liberation of the Jewish people from slavery in Egypt, as narrated in the Book of Exodus. It was and continues to be the most important Jewish seasonal festival, celebrated on the first full moon after the vernal equinox.

At the time of Jesus, Passover had special significance, as the Jewish people were again under the dominance of foreign powers (namely, the Romans). Jewish pilgrims streamed into Jerusalem every year in the hope that God's chosen people (as they believed themselves to be) would soon be liberated once more.

On one Passover, Jesus traveled to Jerusalem with his disciples to celebrate the festival. He entered Jerusalem in a triumphal procession and created a disturbance in the Jerusalem Temple. It seems that both of these actions attracted the attention of the Romans, and that as a result Jesus was executed around the year A.D. 30.

Some of Jesus' followers, however, believed that they saw him alive after his death, experiences that gave birth to the Christian religion. As Jesus died during the Passover festival and his followers believed he was resurrected from the dead three days later, it was logical to commemorate these events in close proximity.

Some early Christians chose to celebrate the resurrection of Christ on the same date as the Jewish Passover, which fell around day 14 of the month of Nisan, in March or April. These Christians were known as Quartodecimans (the name means "Fourteeners").

By choosing this date, they put the focus on when Jesus died and also emphasized continuity with the Judaism out of which Christianity emerged. Some others instead preferred to hold the festival on a Sunday, since that was when Jesus' tomb was believed to have been found.

In A.D. 325, the Emperor Constantine, who favored Christianity, convened a meeting of Christian leaders to resolve important disputes at the Council of Nicaea. The most fateful of its decisions was about the status of Christ, whom the council recognized as "fully human and fully divine." This council also resolved that Easter should be fixed on a Sunday, not on day 14 of Nisan. As a result, Easter is now celebrated on the first Sunday after the first full moon of the vernal equinox.

In early America, the Easter festival was far more popular among Catholics than Protestants. For instance, the New England Puritans regarded both Easter and Christmas as too tainted by non-Christian influences to be appropriate to celebrate. Such festivals also tended to be opportunities for heavy drinking and merrymaking.

The fortunes of both holidays changed in the 19th century, when they became occasions to be spent with one's family. This was done partly out of a desire to make the celebration of these holidays less rowdy.

But Easter and Christmas also became reshaped as domestic holidays because understandings of children were changing. Prior to the 17th century, children were rarely the center of attention. As historian Stephen Nissenbaum writes,

"…children were lumped together with other members of the lower orders in general, especially servants and apprentices – who, not coincidentally, were generally young people themselves."

From the 17th century onward, there was an increasing recognition of childhood as as time of life that should be joyous, not simply as preparatory for adulthood. This "discovery of childhood" and the doting upon children had profound effects on how Easter was celebrated.

It is at this point in the holiday's development that Easter eggs and the Easter bunny become especially important. Decorated eggs had been part of the Easter festival at least since medieval times, given the obvious symbolism of new life. A vast amount of folklore surrounds Easter eggs, and in a number of Eastern European countries, the process of decorating them is extremely elaborate. Several Eastern European legends describe eggs turning red (a favorite color for Easter eggs) in connection with the events surrounding Jesus' death and resurrection.

Yet it was only in the 17th century that a German tradition of an "Easter hare" bringing eggs to good children came to be known. Hares and rabbits had a long association with spring seasonal rituals because of their amazing powers of fertility.

When German immigrants settled in Pennsylvania in the 18th and 19th centuries, they brought this tradition with them. The wild hare also became supplanted by the more docile and domestic rabbit, in another indication of how the focus moved toward children.

As Christians celebrate the festival this spring in commemoration of Jesus' resurrection, the familiar sights of the Easter bunny and Easter eggs serve as a reminder of the holiday's very ancient origins outside of the Christian tradition.

Rebs beat Shawe 13-2 to advance to MCIT title game

Southwestern seeking 1st title in event held annually since 1978

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer
dcampbell@madisoncourier.com

Southwestern baseball did its part to reach Saturday's championship game. Now all that is left is to see if Mother Nature will do her part in allowing that game — or the rest of the the tourney — to happen.

Southwestern pounded out 11 hits and used seven errors to dispatch Shawe Memorial 13-2 in the semifinals of the Farmer's Bank of Milton Madison Courier Invitational Thursday at Shawe's Post 9 Field.

The Rebels will now take on the winner between Madison and Austin, scheduled to play on Friday, in the championship game at 1 p.m. on Saturday. But with rain forecast over the next two days, just getting in two games might prove difficult but Southwestern will be playing for its first MCIT title ever.

"It's a big game and anytime you're in the championship game of the MCIT, you take it serious and you play to win," Southwestern coach Derik Hutton said. "We'll see what happens."

Southwestern (6-6) had beaten Shawe 11-0 in five innings on the same field just a week earlier and there was little reason to believe that Thursday's game end any different.

The game once again ended with an 11-run spread, but this time it took the Rebels all seven innings to close the win out.

Southwestern jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the top of the first when Tyler Kramer walked, stole second base and scored on an error.

Shawe (0-8) followed the same script to tie the game in the bottom of the first when Matthew Binzer led off the inning by drawing a walk, went to second on an error and third on a wild pitch before coring on Henry Grote's groundout.

Southwestern's Talon Harmon (above) slides toward home plate as Shawe catcher Hunter Kennett waits for the throw and the Rebels' Mitchell Adcock watches during the 32nd Farmers Banks of Milton Madison Courier Invitational semifinals at Shawe's Post 9 Field on Thursday. The Rebels' Tyler Kramer takes a ball off the helmet (right) as he slides into second on a stolen base as Shawe's Christian Whitham scrambles for the throw. Southwestern won the game 13-2. Tied 1-1 after one inning, the rest of the game belonged to the Rebels

Late error costs Southwestern 4-3 loss to Jac-Cen-Del

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Jac-Cen-Del softball scored on an error in the top of the sixth inning to edge Southwestern 4-3 Thursday in Hanover.

The Rebels out-hit the Eagles 7-6 but three errors led to two earned runs and that proved to be the difference in the Ohio River Valley Conference game.

SOFTBALL ROUNDUP

After Jac-Cen-Del scored a run in the top of the first, Southwestern scored twice in the bottom half on a Trinity McLain RBI single and an Abby Fulton run-scoring double.

That lead held up until the fourth inning when two groundouts produced two runs for the Eagles and pushed them ahead 3-2. Southwestern answered in the bottom of the fifth on a double by Abby Ralston and an error to tie the game 3-3.

Jac-Cen-Del then scored the go-ahead run in the sixth on an error and held off the Rebels over the next two innings to clinch the win.

Ralston was 2-for-3 with a double and two runs scored for Southwestern while Morgan Mahoney, Olivia Bruce and Kassey Worcester added hits.

Lakyn Wilson struck out seven and walked one while allowing just two earned runs in six innings to take the hard-luck loss.

On Wednesday, Southwestern struck first but too many key errors kept the Rebels from victory in a 13-2 loss at Milan.

Southwestern picked up a pair of runs in the top of the first when the Rebels got a single by Ralston, an RBI double from Morgan Mahoney and an RBI single by Fulton.

But the Rebels managed only two hits the rest of the way and four errors led to 10 unearned runs. Milan score three in the bottom of the second to take the lead, seven more in the third and three more in the fourth to win the game going away.

Ralston was 2-for-3 to lead Southwestern while Brooklyn Sachleben added a hit.

Wilson took the loss after allowing eight runs — two earned — on six hits in two and two-thirds innings with three strikeouts and a walk. Kailey Burns worked the final inning and a third, allowing five runs — one earned — on four hits with a walk.

Southwestern (5-5, 1-4 ORVC) visits Madison Friday in Madison's annual Cancer Awareness game, weather permitting.

Madison softball lost 5-1 at home to Floyd Central on Wednesday.

Cubs fan 13 times in 5-1 loss to Highlanders

Madison softball lost 5-1 at home to Floyd Central on Wednesday.

The Cubs managed only four hits and struck out 13 times against Floyd starter Abby Letson, but Madison stayed in the game down until the final batter.

"I'm really proud of how we came out tonight and competed. That is something we have really been talking to the girls about is learning how to bring it every game," Madison coach Tony Ralston said. "I thought Abby (Moore) did a real nice job on the mound tonight."

Floyd Central picked up two runs in the top of the first and another in the second to go up 3-0, but the Highlanders didn't score again until a solo run in the top of the fifth.

Madison finally broke through with a run in the sixth when Emma Cammack's RBI double scored Kennedy Stidham. Floyd then added a run in the top of the seventh for the final margin.

Moore allowed five runs on 10 hits but she also struck out four without walking a batter.

Bailey Dyer, Hannah Uhl and Morgan Cahall added singles for the Cubs.

Madison (3-8) was to host Southwestern Friday in the team's annual Cancer Awareness game, weather permitting.

Ponder hit 2 home runs in win over Gallatin

Abby Ponder belted two home runs and Trimble County softball rolled to a 14-4 win over Gallatin County at home Wednesday.

Ponder collected a total of four RBIs on her two blasts to highlight a Trimble offense that scored at least one run in each of the six innings. Overall, the Raiders had eight different players total 11 hits while Gallatin managed just six hits total and made seven errors.

Shelby Wilcoxson was 2-for-4 with a double, three RBIs and two runs scored. Kaila Lira was 2-for-3 with two runs and two RBIs, Rachel Liter was 2-for-3 with a run and an RBI, Emma Ginn had a hit, two runs and three RBIs, Kaylee Payton had a hit and two runs, Haley Howard had a hit and a run and Lauren Haney scored a run.

Wilcoxson started and picked up the win, allowing four runs — three earned — on six hits in two innings with four strikeouts and no walks. Ponder worked a perfect three innings with three strikeouts for the save.

Trimble (8-4) as to host Lloyd Memorial Friday, weather permitting.

Carroll bounces back from 2nd loss with win

Kaitlyn Gladdis singled in the winning run in the bottom of the seventh inning to lift Carroll County softball to a 4-3 win over Williamstown Thursday at home.

With the win the Panthers bounced back from just their second setback of the season, a 4-1 loss at Collins on Wednesday in Shelbyville, Kentucky.

In what was a rematch of the All "A" Classic Eighth Region championship game played on April 11, Carroll and Williamstown entered the final inning tied 3-3 when Carroll went to work to pull out the win. The Panthers had scored a much easier 12-6 win in the tourney championship.

Hailey Austin drew a one-out walk to get Carroll's winning rally started and Jordan Ray followed with a single. After both runners moved up on Bailey Stewart's groundout, Gladdis singled in Austin for the walk-off game winner.

Carroll County opened the game by scoring three runs in the bottom of the first when Allie Beach singled in Bailey Mefford and Layne Huesman laced a two-run double.

Williamstown chipped away from there, getting a run in the third and two in the fifth to tie the game.

Andrea Searcy struck out 13 batters and none of the three runs scored on her watch were earned as the Carroll ace picked up the win. She allowed seven hits in seven innings and walked four.

Beach and Ray each had a pair of hits while Mefford, Mallory Besselman and Kamryn Knight added one hit each.

On Wednesday, Carroll and Collins collected five hits and committed one error each, but the host Titans made the most of their few opportunities to pick up the win.

Collins scored a run in the first on a wild pitch then pushed three across in the third on an error and a two-run single by Allyson Long.

Carroll County finally got on the board in the fifth when pinch hitter Huesman singled and eventually scored on Mefford's RBI single. But the Panthers had just one baserunner over the final two innings.

Searcy struck out 11 but was hit with the loss for Carroll after giving up four earned runs on five hits in six innings with three walks. Collins' Ella Staples had eight strikeouts and no walks to pick up the win.

Beach, Searcy and Stewart each added hits for the Panthers.

Carroll (11-2, 4-0 North Central Kentucky Conference) hosts Owen County Tuesday.

Carroll Co. baseball rolls to two lopsided shutouts

COURIER STAFF REPORT

Carroll County baseball exploded for nine runs in the third inning to roll over Lloyd Memorial 12-0 in North Central Kentucky Conference baseball Thursday in Erlanger.

The Panthers, who scored a run in the top of the first on an error, hammered the Juggernauts for nine runs in the third, highlighted by Dane Lacefield's two-run home run, to blow open the game. Carroll then scored solo runs in the fourth and fifth innings to end the game early on the mercy rule.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Lacefield finished 2-for-3 with two runs scored and two RBIs while Zach Clifford was 2-for-4 with two runs and an RBI and Kennedy Daigle had two hits, scored twice and drove in two. Logan Rogers had a hit and three RBIs, Craig Beach had a hit and an RBI and David Duncan and Chris Perkinson each had a hit.

Jacob Polley was the beneficiary of the offense for the win after tossing a three-hit shutout in five innings with five strikeouts and a walk.

On Wednesday, Clifford tossed a three-inning no-hitter as Carroll rolled over Gallatin County 15-0 at home.

The Panthers hit Gallatin early and often, scoring six runs in the first, five in the second and four in the third to end the game on the mercy rule.

Carroll pounded out 16 hits in the game with Duncan going 4-for-4 with a double, two RBIs and a run scored, Beach was 3-for-3 with a double, three runs and four RBIs, and Rogers was 3-for-3 with three runs and four RBIs.

Andrew Shaw added two hits and three RBIs, Lacefield had two hits, an RBI and scored twice, Daigle had a double and two RBIs and Polley had a hit and scored twice.

Clifford struck out three and walked one to pick up the abbreviated no-hitter.

Carroll (8-6 , 3-0 NCKC, 2-0 31st District,) hosts Newport Saturday.

Pacers beat Mustangs

Switzerland County baseball broke loose for 14 runs on 12 hits to beat New Washington 14-5 on Wednesday.

The Pacers scored in every inning, starting with a four-run first to open the contest. Switzerland had solo runs in the second and third innings, three in both the fourth and fifth, and two in the sixth.

Zach Weaver went 3-for-5 with a double, four runs scored and two RBIs to lead the Pacers at the plate, and also picked up the win on the mound, tossing a complete-game allowing five earned runs on 10 hits with seven strikeouts and three walks.

Cade Rider was 3-for-5 with three runs scored for the Swiss, Arthur Colaneo was 2-for-5 with a double and four RBIs, Damion Courter was 2-for-5 with two runs scored, Patrick Stow had a hit and scored four times, and Landon Wilks had a hit.

Switzerland (2-8) hosts Southwestern Monday.

Milan denies Rebels

Southwestern baseball pushed across two runs in the third inning, but Milan answered with four in the bottom of the frame to fend of the visiting Rebels 5-2 Wednesday.

Trailing 1-0, the Rebels mounted a rally that included singles by Foster Mefford and Mitchell Adcock to go with a Milan error on a groundball to third by Talon Harmon and a sacrifice fly by Zach Cole. Cole's fly ball to left scored Mefford and Adcock's two-out single to right field scored Harmon to put the Rebels on top 2-1.

But it was a short-lived lead.

Southwestern starter Nate Lichlyter walked Treyton Robbins on four straight pitches to start the bottom of the third before Dakota Sams and Grayden Taylor smacked back-to-back one-out singles to tie the game and load the bases. Sam then scored on an error by Harmon in right field for what proved to be the game winner and a two-out single by Caiden Yorn pushed across two insurance runs.

Milan (3-3, 3-1 Ohio River Valley) out-hit the Rebels 8-4 but had four errors to Southwestern's two. There were only two extra base hits in the game — one per team — with Sams and Southwestern's Bailey Elliott both recording doubles.

Lichlyter pitched 2 2/3 innings for Southwestern, giving up five runs — all earned — on five hits and three walks with two strikeouts to take the loss. Cole shut the Indians down the final 3 1/3 innings by scattering three hits and a walk by striking out six.

Joel Norman went the distance for Milan and picked up the win. His two runs were both unearned on four hits and two walks with four strikeouts.

Southwestern's hits were spread among four players while Sams and Taylor were 2-for-4 for Milan and Yorn was 2-for-2 with two RBIs.

Southwestern now playsw the winner of Madison-Austin in the championship game of the Farmer's Bank of Milton Madison Courier Invitational Saturday at Gary O'Neal Field.

Shawe falls to Cougars

Shawe's baseball dropped an 8-3 decision to South Decatur at home on Wednesday.

The Hilltoppers were led at the plate by Chris Powers, who was 2-for-3 with two RBIs. Cazden Nott had a single and a double and Walker Kennett had a hit and drove in a run.

Nate Pawlak started on the mound and took the loss after allowing five runs — three earned — over five innings.

Shawe now plays the loser of Madison-Austin in the consolation game of the Farmers Bank of Milton Madison Courier Invitational on Saturday at Post 9 Field.

Raiders routed 20-0

Trimble County baseball was no match for Oldham County, falling 20-0 Wednesday in Bedford.

The Raiders managed only two hits in the four-inning game while committing six errors. Ryan Goody had a double for Trimble and Seth Brewer added a single.

Matt Saylor took the loss for Trimble after allowing nine runs — eight earned — on nine hits with two strikeouts and two walks. Goody and Evan Stevens followed him to the mound.

Shawe beats Mustangs, falls to Warriors

Shawe's girls tennis team swept a young and short-handed New Washington squad 5-0 Wednesday on the road.

The Hilltoppers picked up two wins by forfeit and dropped just a combined nine games in sweeping the three contested matches in straight sets.

Shawe's Abigail Hill defeated Willow Holsapple 6-0, 6-0 at No. 1 singles. Lina Leatherman and Kelly Hesse defeated New Washington's Kaelee Weber and Heidi Hughes 6-0, 6-3 at No. 1 doubles and Shawe's Jessica Lopez and Caroline Grote defeated Sarah Jones and Jordan Standiford 6-0, 6-3 at the No. 2 doubles.

Shawe (2-3) hosts Christian Academy of Indiana today.

Shawe girls tennis lost 5-0 to Christian Academy of Indiana on Thursday in Madison.

The Hilltoppers managed to win 15 games overall but still went down in straight sets to a strong Warriors squad.

Results were: Singles — No. 1 Meghan Hunt (CA) def. Abigail Hill (SM) 6-3, 6-0; No. 2 Lindsay Bilkey (CA) def. Phoebe Grote (SM) 6-0, 6-2; No. 3 Maddie Brown (CA) def. Kristin Snodgrass (SM) 6-0. 6-1; Doubles — No. 1 Julia Lostutter, Hannah Schultz (CA) def. Lina Leatherman, Kelly Hesse (SM) 6-2, 6-2; and No. 2 Ashley Moffet, McKenna Straw (CA) def. Caroline Grote, Natalie Stewart 6-3, 6-3.

In exhibition matches Jessica Lopez and Reyna Ortiz won 4-0 and lost 4-2 and Briseida Reyes won 4-2.

Shawe (2-4) plays at Madison on Saturday.

thanks in large part to those Shawe errors. Two miscues led to a six-run second inning for Southwestern and the Rebels added a run in the third, three in the fifth and two in the seventh to blow open the game.

All told, only three of Southwestern's 13 runs were actually earned as errors plagued the Hilltoppers from nearly the opening pitch.

"We're getting there. I thought we played pretty well, we just lose our focus for a couple of plays here and a couple of plays there," Shawe coach Geno Pawlak said. "There was that one big inning where the floodgates opened and we just couldn't get them closed in time. And that's just a lack of focus. But we're getting better."

With the game all but out of reach after the second, the Rebels went into cruise control and Hutton was able to run some other pitchers into the game, a crucial development considering that Southwestern was playing its third game of the week and will now play at least one more.

While Hutton was pleased with the way Talon Harmon and Foster Mefford pitched in relief of starter Landon DeAtley, he was also frustrated at what he believed was his team's inability to put the game away.

"It was nice to get that big lead, but on the other hand, our guys tend to relax a little bit when we get up like that," Hutton said. "We have to do a better job of putting teams away."

Trailing 8-1, Shawe scored its final run in the bottom of the fourth inning when Walker Kennett reached on an error and eventually scored on Chris Powers' RBI single. Like Shawe, the Rebels had their own issues with errors and while they committed only two, they led to both unearned runs.

DeAtley ended up getting the win although he pitched only two-plus innings and allowed one unearned run on no hits with four strikeouts and four walks. Harmon gave up an unearned run and two hits in three innings while Mefford struck out four and walked one in two innings.

Mefford was also 3-for-4 at the plate with three runs scored while Tyler Kramer was 2-for-3 with three runs and two RBIs but was on base five times. Zach Cole was 2-for-5 with a triple and three RBIs.

Bailey Elliott, Jackson Stockdale, Harmon and Dylan West each added hits with West's a double.

Walker Kennett allowed 11 runs on 10 hits in five innings for Shawe but only three of the runs were earned. Binzer worked the final two innings and gave up two unearned runs on one hit with a strikeout.

Walker Kennett, Nate Pawlak and Powers had Shawe's lone hits.

4-H members showcase different talents during contest

Courier staff report

4-H members from throughout the county participated in the 2019 Jefferson County 4-H Performing Arts Talent Contest April 18 at the Jefferson County 4-H Fairgrounds.

While the event was intended to be a competition, there was only one entry in each category, so the evening was used as a practice for the Area 1 4-H Performing Arts Contest, which will be April 27.

The first act was the Glowing Sticks Dance (above, left) by three members of the Happy Hoosiers 4-H Club — Gian Thomas, Noah Hall and Daisy Nott. In this act, the three danced to a compilation of popular songs from past decades.

Next, Addy Nott (right) from the Happy Hoosiers 4-H Club performed a monolouge titled "Sorry, I'm Late."

Third, Rachel Goley (left) performed a violin solo of the song "Ol Suzanna."

The last performance was a group act by the Willing Workers 4-H Club (above, right) titled "People of Fair Week." In this act, members Jenna Martin, Jamison Williams, Kate Miller, Claire Miller, Taylor-Austyn Imel, Ben Goley, Rachel Goley, Ellie Shipman and Shelby Morton performed sketches about the stereotypical people that attend the 4-H Fair.

All 4-H members who participated in this contest have the chance to participate in the Area 1 4-H Performing Arts Contest, which will be at 6 p.m. April 27 at North Madison Christian Church. For more information, call the Jefferson County Extension Office at (812) 265-8919.

Too much to celebrate

Annie Lane

Dear Annie: Mother's Day and Father's Day always present a dilemma for my family, and I was hoping you and your readers could offer some advice. Unlike individual birthdays, Mother's Day and Father's Day celebrate multiple individuals on the same day. As a kid, my family spent the day visiting both sets of grandparents, in addition to trying to plan something special for our mom or dad.

As our family grows, some of us are now parents ourselves and additionally have in-laws to also celebrate. Even phone calls are hard to plan on these holidays, trying to catch Mom or Dad at home when they are not already on the phone with another sibling! How can we celebrate these two holidays without all the hassle? — Overwhelmed Daughter

Dear Overwhelmed Daughter: It sounds to me like you are overwhelmed with a wonderful family. As your family grows, maintaining your childhood tradition of physically celebrating with your kids, your own mother and father and mother-in-law or father-in-law might pose a challenge. But that doesn't mean you can't acknowledge them on this special holiday. It might take a little planning on your part, but a heartfelt letter or card is always a nice gesture. That way you don't have to worry that the phone lines might be tied up. If writing a note isn't your thing, you could always invite your in-laws or your parents over for a home-cooked meal on another day. Celebrating isn't about the actual day; it is about the love you express and show to your mom and dad.

Dear Annie: My sister is a year younger than me, 64, and I believe she has been mentally ill to some degree ever since a bad divorce in her 20s. In my opinion, she has a personality disorder of some sort, although it is hard to plug her symptoms into a specific type. There are elements of obsessive-compulsive personality disorder (different from OCD) and narcissistic personality disorder. It has a lot to do with control, compulsiveness, stubbornness and absolute blamelessness, along with denying anything is wrong with her.

This has caused her many problems, most recently being restricted in her ability to see our mother and also to play piano for residents at my mom's residential living home, something she loved doing. I have gone on my own to see a mental health counselor for advice on how to help her, but since she denies having a problem and is not a threat to herself or others, there is nothing to be done. I've been to a NAMI meeting, which is a family support group, and that just showed me other people are dealing with things much worse than we are.

So, you are kind of a last resort. Do you have advice on how to help someone who doesn't think they need help and believes they are totally right and everybody else is the cause of all their problems? Thanks in advance. — A Concerned Brother

Dear Concerned Brother: Your love and devotion to your sister is admirable, but in the end it is her life and experience to live. Continue to support and listen to her patiently and with compassion as a brother rather than a psychologist.

Denying that one has a problem is a very common response in mental illness cases. Your sister could be in denial and feeling ashamed. It is understandable that this whole situation leaves you feeling powerless.

If the situation deteriorates further, I would seek out another mental health counselor who might have suggestions for how you can get your sister into treatment.

"Ask Me Anything: A Year of Advice From Dear Annie" is out now! New Hanover College Executive Director of Admission

Courier staff report

Rachel Schmidtke will begin May 15 as executive director of admission at Hanover College.

Schmidtke comes to Hanover after more than six years at DePauw University where she had been director of recruitment since July 2016. As recruitment director, she guided a 12-member staff while overseeing counseling, campus visits and events.

She helped to increase DePauw's diversity and maintain academic quality. Schmidtke also was a member of the university's Presidental Advisory, Housing Master Plan, Faculty Admission, Alumni Admission and Incoming Transition Team committees.

Before becoming director of recruitment, Schmidtke was DePauw's senior associate director of admission from July 2014 to July 2016. She was associate director and regional counselor for Cincinnati and Indianapolis from Sept. 2012 to July 2014.

In those roles, Schmidtke developed and coordinated recruiting strategies for the university's primary recruitment territory. She increased the number of students from the regions while reviewing more that 600 applications annually. She also assisted in the development of on-campus admission events, facilitated guidance counselor meetings in each territory and participated in numerous high-school panels.

Before DePauw, Schmidtke was assistant director of admission and admission counselor at Saint Mary's College.

Schmidtke is a member of the Indiana Association of College Admission Counseling, National Association of College Admission Counseling and the Great Lakes Colleges Association.

Award winning actress to visit The Commons in Columbus

Tony Award-winning actress Lea Salonga will be performing as a part of the Spring 2019 "Cabaret at The Commons" series on Wednesday, May 1, at 7:30 p.m. The concert, whose title sponsors are Joe and Sher Cunningham, is close to a sellout.

Recognized by many fans as the singing voice of Princess Jasmine in Disney's "Aladdin" and as Fa Mulan in "Mulan" and "Mulan II," Salonga is an accomplished actress and singer.

She began her career as a child star in the Philippines, where she made her professional debut in 1978 at the age of seven in the musical "The King and I." At the age of ten, she released her first album "Small Voice" and hosted her own musical television show, "Love, Lea."

Salonga's big break came when she played Kim in the musical "Miss Saigon" in London. In 1991, she joined the Broadway production of "Miss Saigon," winning a Tony Award, Drama Desk Award and Theatre World Award for the role.

Salonga was also the first Asian to play Eponine in the musical "Les Miserables" and reprised the role for the 10th anniversary concert. She later joined the show as Fantine for the 25th anniversary.

Most recently, Salonga starred in the 2018 Broadway revival of "Once on This Island" as the Goddess of Love, Erzulie. This show's return to Broadway earned a Tony Award for "Best Revival of a Musical" and also earned Salonga and the cast a Grammy nomination for "Best Musical Theater Album."

During her career, Salonga has performed for six Philippine presidents, three American presidents and for Diana, Princess of Wales, and Queen Elizabeth II.

"I have been following Lea's career since she first took the musical theater world by storm as a teenager in 'Miss Saigon.'" said Philharmonic Music Director David Bowden. "She is an exceptionally gifted actor and musician who possesses an astonishing vocal instrument and who instinctively develops a deep relationshio wuth her audience. This is an extraordinary opportunity for our community to experience a world-class artist right here in Columbus."

Salonga first debuted in the world of Cabaret in 2010, performing a sold out, three-week engagement at the Cafe Carlyle in New York City.

Doors and a full cash bar will open at 6:45 p.m. The Commons is at 400 Brown Street in Columbus. For more information about this performance or The Commons, go to www.thecip.org

New way to text for moms in need

A new texting service to better link Hoosier mothers to services available in their communities and improve the health of women and their babies has been launched by the Indiana State Department of Health through its MOMS Helpline.

The texting service will enable MOMS Helpline to expand its reach and ensure that women have easy access to the services and information that can promote a healthy pregnancy and healthy baby. For example, through a text reply, referrals can be sent with a site link that will integrate with the user's smart phone navigation and web browser, providing instant access.

The MOMS Helpline's mission is to reduce the infant mortality rate in Indiana by connecting families with services such as transportation, baby supplies, car seats and financial assistance. MOMS Helpline specialists are certified insurance navigators who can help enroll callers in health insurance programs.

This addition of the texting service will give Hoosiers the ability to schedule an appointment with one of the certified navigators on staff. All services provided through the MOMS Helpline are offered in both English and Spanish.

In addition to adding the new text feature, the helpline recently expanded its partnership with Indiana 2-1-1, allowing call specialists to access information about more than 20,000 resources throughout the state.

Access the MOMS Helpline by text message at (844) 666-7898 for English and (844) 737-6262 for Spanish. BRIDGE

TO FIND THE PLAY, YOU MUST THINK OF IT

Groucho Marx said, "Although it is generally known, I think it's about time to announce that I was born at a very early age."

At least he was thinking. It is also an indisputable truth that if you do not think of the right bid or play, you will not make it.

What does South need to consider in this deal? He is in three no-trump. West leads the heart jack, and East puts up the king.

North, with that singleton diamond, was justified in using Stayman to try to uncover a 4-4 heart fit. When South denied a long major, though, North had to sign off in three no-trump, hoping that the diamond suit would not prove to be a fatal weakness.

South starts with eight top tricks: three spades, two hearts (given the lead) and three diamonds. He can establish three winners from the clubs, but must lose the lead twice while doing that.

Plunging forward, the original declarer won the first trick and played a club. But West took that trick, drove out the heart queen, won the next club and cashed his hearts to defeat the contract.

Declarer needed to do more thinking at a very early age -- trick one. Suppose South lets East take the trick with his heart king.

If East has a heart to return, the suit must be 4-2, and declarer will lose only two hearts and two clubs. Here, though, East will presumably shift to a diamond. Then declarer has the control to end with an overtrick, not an undertrick.

Always take your time at the birth of the play.
